National Multiple Sclerosis Society

Programs, Services and Advocacy

Until a cure is found, the National Multiple Sclerosis Society helps people cope with the disease and maintain independence. To accomplish this, the Society offers educational programs, physical and aquatic therapy, financial assistance, support groups, counseling and referrals. Throughout the year, the South Florida Chapter hosts retreats for both men and women, a statewide Kids' Camp, and serves as the premier advocate for individuals with MS and their families in the State of Florida.

MS can make people feel isolated. This is Why We Have Support Groups.
