Cindy Bean and Jan Johnson Appointed to Lead Region Development Teams

As we continue to align chapters into regions, we are restructuring a number of home office positions to form an Organizational Development and Interim Management (ODIM) Team and an Advancing the Regions Team (ART) to support regions. I am pleased to announce the appointment of Cindy Bean and Jan Johnson to lead these teams.

Organizational Development and Interim Management (ODIM)
In her role as Vice President, Organizational Development and Interim Management, Cindy Bean will lead a team that will:

- Participate with Regional Management Teams (REVPs and CPs) in developing strategic and operating plans for each region and identify areas in need of ODIM team or home office resources to achieve organizational development goals;
- Partner with REVPs to deploy resources to support chapters on specific challenges including organizational assessment, budgeting and planning, campaign development, and other mission critical programs and services;
- Partner with REVPs and the HR department to promote a common culture, recruit staff from the regions for targeted management and leadership development training programs, and identify and address job specific training needs through a variety of learning strategies such as job shadowing, peer networking, coaching and mentoring;
- Organize and oversee transition teams of home office and regional staff to support chapters in transition; and
- Provide on-boarding support to new chapter presidents and senior management staff

Cindy has been with the National MS Society since 1992. She has held numerous roles in the Society, starting first in Development for the Colorado Chapter. During her 10 years there she launched many of the Society's campaigns and experienced first hand the day-to-day challenges and opportunities chapters face. In 2002, Cindy joined the Home Office where she has held many roles including AVP Chapter Fund Development where she was charged with elevating the fundraising success and providing professional development opportunities for our fundraising staff across the country. She has also more recently served as the Associate Vice President of Special Projects, working in concert with the Society's HR department to develop a management/leadership training series and help develop the Society's first career-pathing initiative. In 2008 Cindy became an Associate VP of Field Relations where, along with her colleagues, she provides management and leadership support to the Society's Chapters. She currently is serving as the Interim President in the Greater Illinois Chapter.

Advancing the Regions Team (ART)

In her role as Vice President, Advancing the Regions Team, Jan Johnson will lead a cross-functional team that will work with Regional Executive Vice Presidents, Chapter Presidents and chapter staff to:

- Enhance organizational unity, strengthen alignment of chapter, regional and nationwide priorities and leverage the talents of volunteer and staff leaders across the Society;
- Ensure successful achievement of regional initiatives to reduce operational redundancies, replicate best practices, and accelerate the use of common platforms and systems;
- Ensure that identified Society strategies and best practices are effectively communicated, shared, and implemented in all regions;
- Determine the most effective delivery point for functions and services (chapter, regional, national); and
- Support the implementation of collaborative, region-wide initiatives designed to improve the consistency and quality of programs and services, advocacy activities, fundraising, human resource practices, information technology, finance and other functions and services

Jan joined the National MS Society in 1999 and led the process to realign the Vermont Chapter as a division of the All America Chapter. In her role as Area Vice President for Area IV she partnered with chapters in the northeast to provide management and leadership support in all aspects of chapter operations and planning. She provided staff leadership to the Chapter Board Governance Task Force, developing new governance practices for NMSS chapter boards. In her most recent role as Vice President of Shared Services Jan has led our efforts to standardize data entry, cash handling and payroll processes, positioning the organization for increased efficiency and effectiveness in our business operations. She provides leadership in the development of the Executive Management Team (EMT) Council meetings and communications and to the EMT meetings and conferences.

Cindy Bean's and Jan Johnson's transitions into these positions will occur over time, as regions are formed and the ODIM and ART teams are developed through the ongoing home office staff restructuring.

Please join me in congratulating Cindy Bean and Jan Johnson on their appointments to these new leadership roles.

Workplace Giving Campaign Kick-Off
Action Requested/Deadline: Immediate Attention

Be sure your donors know how to designate the National MS Society in their workplace giving campaigns!

In the next three months, over 1.5 million public and private sector employees will designate their charitable contributions to non-profit organizations nationwide through workplace giving campaigns, such as the Combined Federal Campaign (CFC). Recent changes to federal regulations have allowed numerous sound-alike organizations to enter the CFC increasing the competition for contributions. The best way to ensure that our donors aren't mistakenly designating their contributions to another organization is through donor education.

We also have an opportunity to reach out to new donors in the private sector. This year, the Society will participate in several new corporate campaigns through Community Health Charities. It is imperative that we also educate these donors on designating their workplace giving contributions to the National MS Society.

In most workplace giving campaigns, including the Combined Federal Campaign, participating charities are listed by federation. Instruct your donors to look for the National MS Society listed under Community Health Charities. If an individual works for the federal government or a branch of the military and participates in the Combined Federal Campaign, they can simply use the Society's CFC designation code number: 11409. (If your chapter has a local listing in the Combined Federal Campaign, you may also direct your donors to your local CFC designation code.)

Workplace giving is primarily a local level initiative. As a result, the best way to impact this campaign is through chapter activities. Just a few simple steps can have significant results. In the next few weeks, chapters are strongly encouraged to:

- Contact your state affiliate director of Community Health Charities for information on local health fairs and kick-off events

- Designate a volunteer or staff to participate in local events by hosting a public education booth
- Review and customize the workplace giving webpage on your chapter website. The national webpage on workplace giving was recently updated. Please review the site and update your local webpage accordingly. (Be sure that your webpage includes the current national designation number, the CHC logo, and all local designation numbers. (The national page is: www.nationalmssociety.org/donate/workplace-giving/index.aspx)
- Feature workplace giving on your chapter homepage from September through December. Be sure to include the Community Health Charities logo and the CFC donor designation number: 11409 (The CHC and CFC logos are posted on SharePoint.)
- For additional activities and marketing templates, visit the intranet.

To support local efforts, the home office will also be purchasing an advertisement in Military Times Magazines and placing a full page ad in the fall issue of Momentum.

For questions related to workplace giving campaigns in your state, please contact your Community Health Charities state affiliate director. (A listing is posted on SharePoint.) For additional questions, contact Laura Uzzle (email: luzzle@msn.com or phone: 303-280-1610) or Milton Francis (phone: 281-373-1932 or email: miltonfrancis@sbcglobal.net).

The National MS Society's national designation code for the Combined Federal Campaign is CFC# 11409.

2009 Walk MS Demographic Survey Results

The 2009 Walk MS Demographic Survey is now available providing very useful insight about our participants from general demographics to interests and behaviors. Understanding and using this information will help us be more effective in our marketing strategies and ultimately drive campaign growth.

Highlights include:

- 94% of all walkers have a direct connection to MS – 36% have MS. This underscores the need for Walk MS materials and communications to speak to an audience who is familiar with the disease and has a high affinity for the cause.
- Participants prefer to receive event information through multiple channels – e-mail, postal mail and chapter websites – rather than a single channel. Chapters should offer multi-channel communications to address this preference by our participants. It is especially important to note that first year participants with MS, as well as those representing a minority, requested event information through postal mail at a higher rate than the overall audience.
- Social media continues to grow, with 57% of participants belonging to a social media network (of those, 96% belong to Facebook). Only 11% of participants currently want to receive event information via their social media network. This will be an area to continue to monitor as social media continues to grow and evolve.
- Both the household income and the education level of Walk participants have increased since the 2004 survey. Currently 61% have an undergraduate or higher degree (compared to 48% in 2004) and 64% have a household income of over $50K (compared to 45% in 2004).
- Participants have become less diverse since the 2004 survey. 82% of all walkers are female (compared to 75% in 2004). In 2004, 83% of walkers were Caucasian, in 2009, 91% are Caucasian. If Walk participation was reflective of the make-up of those affected by MS, we might expect to see about 13% of walkers representing minorities. Identifying ways to more effectively reach minorities is important.
- 51% of all walkers first heard about Walk MS from a family member/friend/co-worker. This result underlines the fact that Walk MS is a team-centered event and that our best promotion is word of mouth through our participants. The next highest method identified by walkers for learning about the event was through the chapter office, emphasizing the importance of partnering with program staff in spreading the message about Walk.

- The sub-group of first year participants with MS (those most likely newly diagnosed) provided more useful information:
    - Most first heard about the Walk via the Society's website providing opportunities to talk about Walk on the pages most likely visited by people who are newly diagnosed. This group regularly visits the Society website, with 71% visiting at least once a month.
    - They tend to be younger and have lower income than walkers overall.
- The sub-group of African American participants also showed interesting results that can impact marketing.
    - A higher percentage of African American Walk participants have MS compared to the overall population of Walk participants (42% compared to 36% overall)
    - Twitter and MySpace usage are higher in this group than overall (24% and 41% respectively, compared to 17% and 31% overall)

A full view of the demographic survey results is posted on SharePoint under Development/Walk/General Documents or http://intranet.nmss.org/Topics/development/Documents/2009_Walk_Demographic_Survey_Overall_Results.pdf

A state by state analysis of the survey will be sent to chapters by the end of September.

If you have further questions about the survey, please contact Ellen Penrod at ellen.penrod@nmss.org or 303-698-6100 x15104.

MS Trial Alert:
Investigators Recruiting for Study of Duloxetine Hydrochloride to Treat Neuropathic Pain in MS

Summary: Investigators in the United States (US) are currently recruiting approximately 200 people with all types of MS who are experiencing central neuropathic pain for a clinical research study to determine if the investigational use of the oral study drug, duloxetine hydrochloride, versus placebo, is safe and effective at reducing neuropathic pain associated with MS. The study is sponsored by Eli Lilly and Company.

Rationale: Approximately 55% of people with MS experience pain. There are two types of chronic pain caused by MS – neuropathic pain (caused by nerve damage) and non-neuropathic pain (caused by muscle spasms or contractions). Neuropathic pain is often described as burning, stabbing, and shooting pain in the legs and arms; and numbness, tingling, prickly, or "pins and needles" sensations. The purpose of this study is to evaluate the investigational use of duloxetine hydrochloride to determine if it reduces neuropathic pain experienced by those with MS. The drug being studied belongs to the group of medications known as selective serotonin and norepinephrine reuptake inhibitors (SSNRIs). The study drug has not been approved for the treatment of MS or MS pain.

Eligibility and Details: Participants should be 18 years and older, with a diagnosis of MS for at least 1 year, no MS flare-ups or change in disease treatment for the past three months, and having central neuropathic pain due to MS daily for a minimum of three months prior to study entry.

The National MS Society is proud to be a source of information about MS. Our comments are based on professional advice, published experience and expert opinion, but do not represent individual therapeutic recommendation or prescription. For specific information and advice, consult your personal physician.

Participants will be randomly assigned to receive duloxetine hydrochloride or placebo for six weeks. If they complete this phase they will be invited to participate in an open-label phase during which participants will receive one of several doses of duloxetine hydrochloride. This is a 20-week study, in which participants will be expected to complete a maximum of six office visits and six telephone calls at specified time intervals. There will be approximately two weeks between each visit and/or call.

The primary outcome of this study is to determine the safety and effectiveness of the study drug versus placebo at reducing neuropathic pain in patients with MS. Secondary outcome measures include other pain assessments, along with assessments of quality of life and depression.

Contact: To learn more about enrollment criteria for this study, and to find out if you may be eligible to participate, please call 1-877-CTLILLY (1-877-285-4559 or 1-317-615-4559). Sites are located in the following cities in the US:
